Meeting Notes:

The College of Arts & Letters
Festival of the Arts presents:

Jack Gladstone

"Montana's Troubadour"

Spirits, Heroes, Tricksters and Fools

Blackfeet Narratives from the Buffalo Café

An enrolled citizen of the Blackfeet Nation, Jack Gladstone illustrates American Indian culture through a mosaic of music, lyric poetry, and spoken word narrative. He co-founded Glacier National Park's renowned lecture series, "Native America Speaks." This program, established in 1985, is the longest continuously running indigenous speaker series in Park Service history. Jack has released fifteen critically acclaimed CDs. His latest release, "Native Anthropology," garnered the prestigious "Best Historical Recording" from the Native American Music Association. Jack is an inductee to the University of Washington Alumni Hall of Fame. He has been honored with a Governor's Humanities Award and is a recipient of the C.M. Russell Heritage Award for his contribution to "the legacy, culture, life, and country of Russell's West."
